Jack Hafer is a preacher of the Gospel of Jesus Christ who has been spreading the good news for over 35 years. He became a Christian himself in his college years. Shortly thereafter he married his wife Ann, whom he met while preaching at a congregation in Portland, Oregon. He ministered with church at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho for 14 years, and with the church at South Salem, Oregon for another 20 years. The father of three, Jack currently works with his son-in-law, who is a full-time preacher at the Dallas, Oregon congregation. Jack began his Bible study in earnest when he moved to Kirkland, Washington to study under Lowell Williams. His passion for evangelism was instilled in him by Norton Dye, whom Jack worked with at the church in Clovis, California. Seeking the lost has taken him on mission trips to Kenya, Uganda, Tanzania, South Africa, Zimbabwe, Ghana, Chile, and the Philippines. Having a love for the outdoors, Jack loves to hike, camp, and photograph God's creation.
